as we see it

■ This is the week of the Crosby golf tournament-be the good Lord willin'.

It may rain on California's Monterey Peninsula, site of Bing's 27th annual separation of the men from the boys. Then again it may snow, hail or sleet -or all three-in the time it takes to play three holes.

■ Contestants can look forward to thunder and lightning. A sandstorm is possible. It has also become so foggy around the peninsula that a nearsighted player can see about as far as his contact lenses. Of course when the wind comes up the fog blows awaysometimes as fast at 50 or 60 miles an hour.

On the other hand, the courses are rugged. Players have a go at several of them during the tournament, winding up at the classic layout on the rock-bound coast of Pebble Beach. This gem has been known to reduce strong men to tears-when the sun is shining. Which isn't often in January.

Still, for our money it's the most fascinating golf tournament on television. Not as important, perhaps, as the Masters or the PGA, but a much better show. The stars include not only the top golfers, but a goodly number of show-business greats and other talented amateur golfers who participate in the pro-am tournament. There is the normal suspense of golf on TV, but also the suspense of the weather. What'll it do next? And the violence! Great champions ripping through elephant grass, or, like Arnold Palmer one memorable year, beating desperately at a ball that kept bouncing back from the rocks into the water. ■ When the action is at its hottest and the Crosby contestants are frustrated and wind-blown and sopping wet, there isn't a show on television more delightful, more heartwarming to the duffers at home comfortably watching the mayhem on their screens.

THE HOME OF THE OPPRESSED

by Edith Efron

Here is a description of one of the most powerful nations on earth:

"It is called a parliamentary democracy, but that is a sham. It's a dictatorship. There is no individual freedom. Militarists, and a small power elite that controls the means of production, rule the country and oppress the people. There is no middle class. The mass of the people are very poor, and rebellious. It is a vicious, imperialist power."

Anyone who supposes that this is a description of the Soviet Union may go to the back of the class. The name of this nation is the United States.

Or, to be precise, this is the weird picture of the U.S.A. that emerges from the Communist Party-controlled television screen in the Soviet Union. It was described by Nikita Moravsky, senior editor of the Russian service of the Voice of America, who left the Soviet Union last April after two years as cultural attaché at the U.S. Embassy. This image of the brutal American "dictatorship" populated by hungry and oppressed "masses" is beamed daily by the Soviets to an estimated 50 to 80 million people.

Russian TV, like all other institutions in the USSR, is an instrument of Party ideology. It is officially instructed to pound Communist doctrine and Communist goals into the heads of its citizenry, and it fulfills this "educational" function every day. One of its unchanging targets is the Western Enemy, namely us; and one of its highest purposes is to develop and sustain a paranoid hatred of the U.S.

According to journalists and to some of this country's foremost experts on the Soviet Union, all of whom have spent anywhere from one to five years in Russia, there is a consistent impression of the image of the U.S. that comes over the Soviet screen.

One expert on this subject is Dabney Chapman, deputy chief of the European division of the Voice of America, just back from a year in the Soviet Union, where he was first secretary of the U.S. Embassy, He was expelled from the Soviet Union in retaliation for the ouster from the United States of two Soviet espionage agents. His summary of Soviet "coverage" of the U.S. is much like Moravsky's: "Anywhere from 5 percent to 35 percent of the news and commentary on any evening attacks the U.S. directly or by implication. They attack us as a dictatorial society. They never mention the middle class or the average income. They show belly-bloated Negro babies and tin shanties—and this is supposed to represent our working classes. The over-all focus is on our poverty. racism and police brutality."

Another top Soviet expert, who prefers to remain anonymous, elaborates in greater detail: "The vision of America that comes over the Russian screen is that of a pre-industrial society. Freedom is only for a very few rich people. The vast middle class is simply not there. Most people are very poor. It's a highly materialistic society, dominated by avarice. It's a society in a high state of turmoil, with rampant crime, rioting and so on. The over-all picture is hunger, avarice, tyranny. chaos.

"Two principal subthemes dominate. One is imperialism—the Vietnam situation, and personal attacks on President Johnson. The second is Nazism. They portray us as a pro-Nazi people. They say we support the neo-Nazi revanchist groups in Germany. They portray the Nazi movement in the States as a substantial political movement. This constant stress on our pro-Nazi attitudes is designed to make Russian viewers feel we are deeply inimical to them. There is no 'spirit of Glassboro' on Soviet TV."

If this calculated portrait of a pro-Nazi tyranny is not sufficient to inspire the desired hatred of the U.S. in the Soviet viewer, the virulent style of presentation helps it along. One of the big current documentary series on Soviet TV is called Facts Are Stubborn Things. This series concentrates, says one observer, on the "bestiality, danger and inanity of non-Soviet society." Here's a brief description by a U.S. observer of the atmospheric quality of one show: "The potion of vindictive hatred served the Soviet viewer was brewed with the wartime propagandist's disregard of niceties. It simmered with grotesque stereotypes. The vituperative commentary blended forcefully with horror scenes on film to create a feeling of imminent threat from irrational outside forces."

The Soviet line on the U.S. as a world power is well-known in this country, particularly in relation to Vietnam. It can be thus summarized: The U.S. is a vicious imperialist power, led by a murdering President, which is massacring innocent, peace-loving civilians in Vietnam, out of sheer power lust and racial hatred.

This line is pounded into the Russian viewer over and over again. It is accompanied by photographs of President Johnson speaking against a backdrop of U.S. bombers, close-ups of American boys being shoveled into coffins to the tune of honky-tonk music, corpses of Vietnamese women and babies, and, of course, photographs of the rioting "masses" demanding peace on the U.S. mainland.

The Soviet approach to U.S. domestic life is not so well-known here. It can best be communicated by a few examples from TV programs:

On U.S. Children: Veteran reporter Jack Iams thus summarized part of a documentary: "Only in private schools for the rich could American children get a reasonable education, said the narrator. Their public schools taught them nothing. Furthermore, he said, American children were not nearly as well dressed as Russian children—and at this point, the still shots of the American youngsters concentrated on those in poor clothing, with emphasis on Negroes.

On the Statue of Liberty: Another documentary segment purported to describe Fascism in the U.S. According to a wire-service reporter, "It began with coverage of the American Nazi party. Immediately after, a picture of the Statue of Liberty was shown, and the announcer said, "The raised arm and torch resembles the customary salute of the Fascists."

On the National Guard: A segment of one documentary presented "a sociological analysis of U.S. society." "This analysis," says one U.S. observer, "boiled down to the fundamental that the U.S. is breeding killers. It was followed by films of a New York National Guard unit in rigorous training. National Guard units under Johnson's orders, said the narrator, stand ready in every city to quell uprisings of workers and Negroes.... This was linked to photographs of white mercenaries fighting in the Congo. The ominous conclusion was: 'Murder pays well in the West.'"

U.S. Labor-Management Relations: Dabney Chapman thus describes a play he saw on Russian TV: "Its theme was unemployment and the evils of the capitalist system. The hero was a middle-aged man. It was three months to go before he was eligible for his pension. The bosses framed him so he wouldn't get the pension. All the no-good executives chewed gum and looked like the Maffia."

Do the Russians ever say anything favorable at all about the U.S.? Almost never. Says Gayle Hollander, a Soviet-communications authority at MIT's Center for International Studies: "The intent is usually not to be complimentary. In some rare cases, references might be favorable, but it would always be about a minor detail."

How much of this calculated falsity is believed by the Russian viewers? The question is a tricky one to answer. No one interviewed could answer with scientific certainty. But there's a good deal of educated speculation—and we offer it as that:

Soviet experts point out that contradictions constantly emerge in Soviet coverage of the U.S., which can be quite enlightening to the Russian people if they catch them. Says Mrs. Hollander: "What they put on the air often has implications they don't intend, but that a viewer can see. Their point will be that the U.S. Government is dictatorial and that it doesn't listen to the people. Then they'll show protest marchers. Well, the Russian viewer might well ask: 'How come they can protest?' What would happen to me if I tried to protest?'"

Dabney Chapman: "Soviet viewers are enormously ignorant about our society. On the other hand there's a lot of cracker-barrel conversation. If somebody's second cousin knows an American, that guy's brain will be picked! Facts do go out on the grapevine, and they heavily undercut the propaganda. But by how much? I don't know."

Nikita Moravsky provides this answer: "I suppose some percentage of Russians might conceivably accept what's on the set. But, basically, the credibility of the Soviet news media is not accepted in many quarters, even among the most naive and uneducated masses. And information is getting into the country in huge doses. There are foreign radio broadcasts-transistor radios are a fad among the younger generation. There are occasional foreign magazines. And there are tourists. All the Russians have to see is the bodies-the clothing, the shoes! I sometimes think they have the sneaking impression that every American is practically a millionaire!

"As for the sophisticated Russians, the professionals, the bureaucrats—they know the most about the U.S., and none of them swallows it whole.

"But the steady drumfire of all this propaganda does rub off. It leaves a residue. I suppose what you have, ultimately, is a diffuse and contradictory picture of the United States."

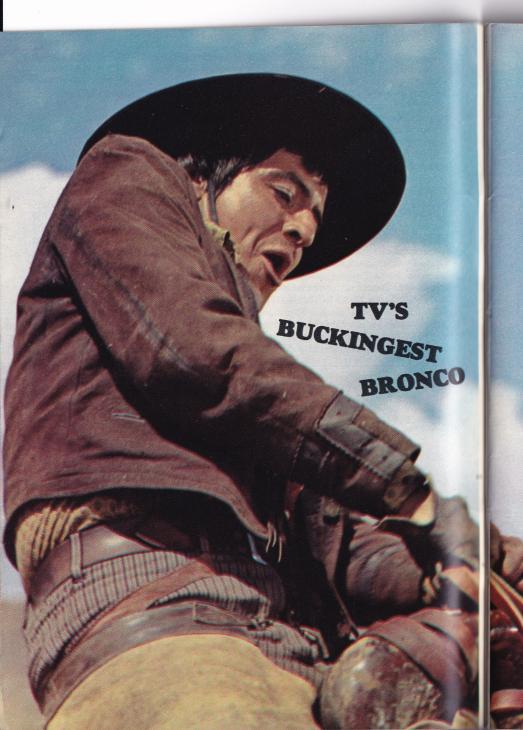

There is one factor above all, it appears, that gives the distorted Russian treatment of the U.S. its potency. It's our own self-criticism.

The Russians document their charges against us right out of our own newspapers and TV programs. It is difficult for Soviet viewers, who are locked inside a propaganda prison. to know how the Party officials are distorting this imported material. And it is difficult for them to disbelieve the monstrous charges leveled against the United States when these charges seem to come from the very lips of President Johnson, President Kennedy, Secretary Dean Rusk, Sen. Robert Kennedy, Sen. Stuart Symington. Sen. Wayne Morse, Senator Fulbright, and The New York Times-to name some of the Soviets' favorite "informants" about the cruelty, disease and tyranny of the United States.

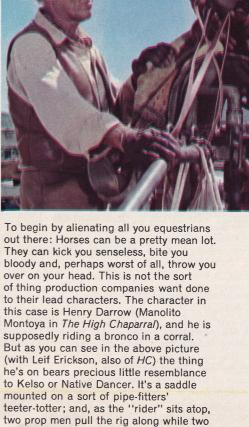

"They're clever in their selection," says Chapman. "They stick with statistics and quotes from American sources. I don't know how many times I've heard President Kennedy quoted on Russian TV, saying that there are 20,000,000 poor in the United States. They're always condemning us out of our own mouths."

There is a good deal of talk, in the press and TV of this country, about the need for developing "mutual understanding" between us and the Soviets. The unfortunate fact is that among Soviet leaders there's nothing very "mutual" about this goal. In the USSR we are the Enemy. While we've been gawking at a smiling "Ivan Ivanovich" on U.S. networks, Soviet TV has been demonstrating vividly that the last thing on earth that interests the Soviet hierachy is allowing "Ivan Ivanovich" to understand us.

'I Think You're Making A Terrible Mistake'

In which Homer Winthrop's little woman does battle with a network

By Irving Young

Oct. 25, 1967

President Amalgamated Broadcasting Company New York, N.Y.

Dear Sir:

I read in the newspaper today that you are taking Search for a Soul off the air at the end of 13 weeks. In my humble opinion this is one of the best programs I have ever seen and I wish to tell you that I, for one, if you take this program off the air, wish to go on record as saying that I will never watch another program ever on your network again.

I think you're making a terrible mistake.

Very truly yours,
Mrs. Grace Winthrop
P.S. Homer, that's my husband, hopes we won't have to use any influence to get you to change your mind.

Oct. 30, 1967

Mrs. Grace Winthrop RFD No. 1 Apple Corners, Kansas Dear Mrs. Winthrop:

The President of Amalgamated Broadcasting has asked me to reply to your thoughtful letter of the 25th.

He wants me to assure you that we always welcome the opinions of our viewers on our programming policies. We will do everything in our power to merit your faith in our good judgment. After all, isn't our programming a reflection of our viewers' desires?

Cordially,
P. P. Graham
Vice President. Programming

Nov. 2, 1967

Mr. P. P. Graham Vice President, Programming Amalgamated Broadcasting Co. New York, N.Y.

Dear Mr. Graham:

I didn't say I had any faith in your programming judgment. I simply said, if memory serves me right, and it usually does in matters of this nature, that I thought your company acted kind of highhanded when it announced it was taking Search for a Soul off the air after 13 weeks when I, and probably millions of more viewers like me, haven't even had a chance to begin to identify with the characters.

Since writing to you last, I've been in touch with many of my neighbors.

You might care to know there are a great many of them who feel the same way I do.

I'm proposing it for discussion at the next get-together of our Weekly Discussion Group.

Yours truly,

(Mrs.) Grace Winthrop P.S. Homer—that's my husband—asks to be remembered. He hopes he won't have to pressure you.

Nov. 8, 1967

Mrs. Grace Winthrop RFD No. 1 Apple Corners, Kansas Dear Mrs. Winthrop:

Your interest in our programming is a source of deep gratification to all of us here at the network. It is viewers like you whom we can count on for a reaction to our shows that constitute the very backbone of network programming.

We want you to know that our programming decisions are not arrived at loosely. We devote much time and consideration to everything we do here and great weight is attached to the opinions of our viewers, as you probably have noticed from the high quality of the programs presented on our network.

Please be assured your comments are always welcome.

Cordially, P. P. Graham

Vice President, Programming

Nov. 13, 1967

Mr. P. P. Graham Vice President, Programming Amalgamated Broadcasting Co. New York, N.Y. Dear Mr. Graham:

Somehow I don't think you've been getting my message. I started out by saying very nicely, I thought, that I was not happy with the announcement I read in the paper that you were taking Search for a Soul off the air and, furthermore, to add insult to injury, that you contemplated replacing it with the Elsie Elsis Show, a show I consider couldn't make it before a prisoner-of-war audience.

While you may not agree with my judgment—and I am coming to feel more and more you don't—I still want you to know that if you take Search for a Soul off the air, I will no longer tune in your network. For anything. As a matter of fact, I am considering removing your channel from my television set completely.

Very truly yours,

(Mrs.) Grace Winthrop

P.S. Homer, that's my husband, says he'll regret having to use any force to get you to change your mind.

Nov. 20, 1967

Mrs. Grace Winthrop RFD No. 1 Apple Corners, Kansas Dear Mrs. Winthrop:

Your continued interest in our programming is most stimulating. It is indeed heartening to learn there are people like you who are concerned and ready to offer their help to us in the difficult job we face.

Cordially, P. P. Graham Vice President, Programming

Nov. 28, 1967

Mr. P. P. Graham Vice President, Programming Amalgamated Broadcasting Co. New York, N.Y. Dear Mr. Graham:

While you've been busy figuring out what programs to cancel, I've been getting madder and madder. And the madder I get, the less time I spend tuning in your network's programs. As a matter of fact, the only time I watch your network is when I watch Search for a Soul. And to do that, I have to go over to a neighbor's house and watch on her set as I've had your channel removed from mine.

I can't believe you'd take this stimulating program off the air.

Neither can any of my friends.

Testily, (Mrs.) Grace Winthrop P. S. Homer, my husband, sends his regards. He also says it's about time to tell you that our home is one of the few in the country equipped with a Nielsen Audimeter.

NEWS ITEM—Dec. 12, 1967. The Amalgamated Broadcasting Company today announced that because of the large volume of mail protesting its recently reported cancellation of Search for a Soul, the program will continue for the remainder of the season.

Science Finds Way To Shrink Painful Hemorrhoids

And Promptly Stop The Itching, Relieve Pain In Most Cases.

A scientific research institute has discovered a medication with the ability, in most cases—to promptly stop burning itch and actually shrink hemorrhoids.

In one hemorrhoid case after another very striking improvement was reported by doctors who conducted the tests. Pain and itching were promptly relieved. And while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

Tests conducted on hundreds of patients by doctors in New York City, in Washington, D.C. and at a Midwest Medical Center proved this so. And it was all done without narcotics or stinging astringents of any kind.

The secret is Preparation H®. There is no other formula for the treatment of hemorrhoids like it! Preparation H also lubricates, soothes irritated tissues and helps prevent further infection. Preparation H comes in ointment or suppository form. No prescription is needed.

THE DOAN REPORT

Fiction, Reality Linked in Show

TV producer Arthur Barron, who a few years ago earned wide acclaim for an ingenious documentary, "My Childhood," describing the early lives of Vice President Humphrey and author James Baldwin, has been quietly at work more than a year at CBS News on an ambitious attempt to create a new TV form marrying fiction and real life. Describing it as a switch on Truman Capote's "In Cold Blood," which Capote called a nonfictional novel, Barron said he is trying, in two hour-long films, "to evoke the meaning, images and moods of great fiction of the past through documentary realities of today." In one part of the first hour, tentatively set for Feb. 27, excerpts from John Steinbeck's "Grapes of Wrath" will be read off-screen by Richard Boone as Barron's cameras watch a destitute family's recent migration from Appalachia to Chicago. In a second sequence, actor Pat Hingle delivers a speech from Sinclair Lewis's "Babbitt" before a Lions Club in Duluth. Minn., a legendary setting of Lewis's classic, and elicits analogy between the book's 1920's and the present day. In Barron's second hour, the subtle meanings of Herman Melville's "Moby Dick" will be sought through a filmed account of a halibut fisherman's workaday adventures on the Gulf of Alaska. The trick, the producer explains, "is to find real people whose lives bear a relevance to the past." If it works, he thinks it may open up "a really fresh and new way of bringing great novels to TV."

Tom Smothers, according to some TV columns, has been burbling to reporters that he and brother Dick are "at complete odds" with CBS over blue-penciling of topical humor on their shows. The network wants their "message" comedy soft-pedalled, the gossip goes, and the boys might just quit. Or CBS might can them. But the word from New York, where the decisions are made, is: Relax. CBS has a "long-term" deal with the Bonanza-buckers and intends to keep them working.

It probably had to happen: Julia Child, educational TV's gift to epicurean bliss, has charmed her way into the White House. And with a WGBH-TV (Boston) TV crew trailing her. The upshot: An hour-long NET special, soon to be seen on noncommercial channels across the country, in which Mrs. Child quizzes everybody from Walt Rostow, special Presidential assistant, down to the kitchen help about the preparations for a formal dinner last Nov. 14 for Japan's Prime Minister Eisaku Sato. She and the TV cameras also were permitted to eavesdrop on the banquet.

Weeks ago, anticipating collapse of the proposed ABC-ITT merger, a highly placed ABC source suggested the network's first move in such an event might be to acquire a book publisher. Now that ITT has backed out, ABC can be expected to diversify to the limit of its capital-raising capacities.—Richard K. Doan

A-2

Surely Eric Sevareid's campaign against the "intellectual" is a strange manifestation ["A Little Less Hypocrisy, Please," Dec. 30]. An intellectual himself, with a vast amount of that power which he and Eric Hoffer say must be denied to intellectuals, yet he is using it [the power itself] to denigrate the word ["intellectual"] and therefore the whole concept, i.e., use of the intellect. For centuries men with small brains have been suspicious of the thinking man. Now it seems rather a shame that Mr. Sevareid and Mr. Hoffer should combine forces to revive an old antagonism with words that aren't even defined. One "type" of intellectual is bad because he's critical of TV, but presumably another is all right because he appears on TV. Mrs. E. R. Johnson

In answer to a critical viewer ["Letters," Dec. 16] I would like to thank RCA, NBC and Perry Como, with his "wholesome reputation," for allowing the Jefferson Airplane to appear on his show. I'm one of the sick young folks who enjoy their music.

Richard G. P. Topham Los Gatos, Cal.

[Other writers concern themselves in large degree to the cancellations of Maya and Hondo, and the replacement of Diana Rigg on The Avengers; and more citizens deplore the frequent appearances of rock groups on television (although a few demur—see above); and Terry Galanoy's Dec. 23 article, "Please Don't Turn Us Off While We're Trying to Turn You On," elicited a veritable postal war between the proand anti-commercial enclaves in this, our outspoken Republic.—Ed.

THIS WEEK'S MOVIES

By Judith Crist SARATOGA TRUNK (NBC), Saturday
HATARI! (ABC), Sunday

THE TRUTH ABOUT SPRING (NBC), Tuesday
TORPEDO RUN (CBS), Thursday
633 SOUADRON (CBS), Friday

In some areas network movies may not be seen on the days indicated.

Y ou can have your "druthers" with the week's network movies; family fare, animal affairs, a brunette Ingrid Bergman and a double dose of World War II heroics are up for takers.

The family fare, "The Truth About Spring" is indeed a family affair, costarring John Mills and his daughter Hayley as a crusty fishing-boat captain and his 18-year-old daughter, Spring, who finds her first romance while Dad gets involved with buried treasure. Mills, as always the perfect performer, and Hayley, at her most enchanting, are assisted by a number of fine character actors in concocting a dandy escape and seascape entertainment for all.

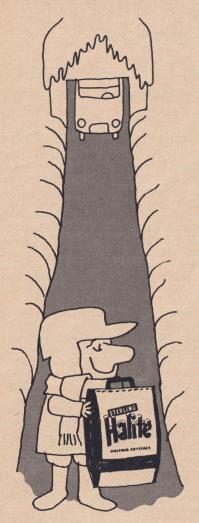

And for kids of all ages there's also the original "Hatari!," Howard Hawks' African Western that is so filled with exuberant and graceful wildlife in action and topped with manly adventure that only a Scrooge would notice the lack of plot or absence of subtlety or character development among the humans.

For those who bring a matinee mentality (and a box of chocolates) to night-time movies, there's "Saratoga Trunk," about as physically lush and intellectually vapid a fabricated romance as has come off the Hollywood assembly line. In this post-Civil-Warperiod Edna Ferber tale, Ingrid Bergman, all brunette for the role, has a tough time appearing unvirtuous as a Creole courtesan intent on getting even with New Orleans high society and marrying a Saratoga Springs millionaire; Gary Cooper is closemouthed as usual and seems more pious than roguish as the Texas gambler who loves her truly. It's nicely nostalgic, however, to see these two stars at their peak. The film was made in 1943 and, before its public release in 1945, was circulated overseas to Army outposts—which gives you an idea of what the GIs had in the way of fun

What else they had to put up with at sea and in the air is demonstrated in "Torpedo Run" and "633 Squadron." The first, seen on another network more than three years ago, is a stale submarine meller that Glenn Ford. with teeth clenched, and Ernest Borgnine, with elephantine manner, barely make believable. The second, "633 Squadron," is an all-action-and-gore RAF drama reminiscent of "The Guns of Navarone" that substitutes death and destruction for character and perception. The final big raid is a jolting and smashing scene with outstanding aerial photography but hardly worth the wait.

The sixth network movie is once again replaced by a "special" non-movie remake of a movie. This time it's "Laura"—and one marvels at the courage of those involved in attempting to surpass that 1944 film triumpheven with the fillip of starring Lee Bouvier, Jacqueline Kennedy's sister, in the title role. A good opportunity indeed for testing our "druthers."

Ingrid Bergman and Gary Cooper star as two tarnished aristocrats who scandalize New Orleans society in the 1870's.

Clio Dulaine was society's child, but she was also illegitimate—so she was packed off to Paris to protect the family name. Now she's back, having inherited wealth and social position-and a chance to lord it over the uppercrust hypocrites whose bigotry resulted in her exile. Clio's ally is Col. Clint Maroon, a society con man more interested in gambling than good breeding.

This 1945 film, based on Edna Ferber's novel, was the second and last Bergman-Cooper vehicle. (They starred in "For Whom the Bell Tolls" in 1943.)

7:00 4 YOU'VE GOT A RIGHT

DEBUT The first in a series of 10 half-hour programs examining the origins and contemporary significance of the United States Constitution and its Bill of Rights.

Surveys, indicating that the average American knows very little about these rights, suggested the series. Famous Supreme Court cases, present and past, involving the evolution of our basic civil rights provide the basis for authentic dramatizations.

A play-within-a-play technique is used to bring alive the historical and legal material and make it more understandable to the layman. The actors argue and explain issues as they debate the pros and cons of legal situations and court decisions.

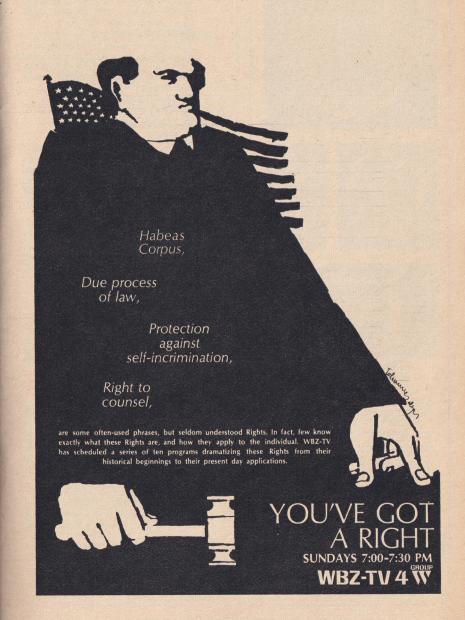

The first two programs, written by Robert Lewis Shayon, center on the Fourteenth Amendment, which deals with Privileges and Immunities. The case of Frank Palko vs. Connecticut, which set a precedent for future court decisions on fundamental rights, is explored.

Cast: Joseph Wiseman, Luis Van Rooten, Addison Powell, John McGovern, John Karlen, Conrad Jameson, Alexander Clark, Conrad Bain.

Produced at WBZ-TV, in cooperation with the New York University School of Law, for Group W. Director: Henry Behar.

This biographical pastiche fondly remembers a tragic and extravagant soul: Welsh poet Dylan Thomas (1914-1953).

To recapture the vitality of Dylan's life and its shadowy legends, producer Terry Miller assembled films, stills, interviews and recordings of the artist reading from his works.

His struggles and triumphs, his reputation as a relentless drinker and woman-chaser, his days in London and the U.S., and his vivid personality are recalled by poet Robert Lowell; artist Mervyn Levy; novelist Pamela Hansford Johnson (Lady Charles Snow); and actresses Nancy Wickwire and Sada Thompson, who discuss the premiere of "Under Milkwood," Dylan's "play for voices."

Caspary's suspense-romance, a novel many regard as one of the demiclassics of the suspense genre.

The story revolves around the brutal murder of a beautiful and sophisticated career woman. Assigned to the case: Lt. Mark McPherson, a hard-bitten detective who invades the victim's cafe-society world and finds himself surrounded by chic, highly likely suspects—but no evidence.

The 1944 movie version garnered five Oscar nominations. Lee Bouvier (Princess Lee Radziwill) appears in the title role. Adapted for TV by Truman Capote and Thomas W. Phipps. Theme composed by David Raksin. (Two hours)

You might have hot flashes and chilly spells, and feel all out of kilter. It's not nice to feel you're not the woman you used to be. It can be a little frightening. And it isn't any wonder that your feelings get jumbled up.

Well, we have something for the day you need a little comforting. Lydia E. Pinkham Tablets. They're made with gentle, natural ingredients that work to give you a better sense of well-being. BELL TELEPHONE HOUR 10:00 4 10

SPECIAL COLOR An intimate study of Yehudi Menuhin, an artist who made the rare transition from child prodigy to adult virtuoso.

Producer Robert Drew uses the cinema verité technique, old stills and films to trace Menuhin's career, from his first appearance with the New York Philharmonic at age 11 to a return engagement, 40 years later, to perform Elgar's Concerto in B Minor.

The 51-year-old artist is also seen at England's Bath Festival, where he rehearses Saint-Saëns' "Carnival of the Animals" with other members of his talented family; in an informal music session with Indian composer-musician Ravi Shankar (the two recently produced a record that includes violin-sitar duets); at his music school in London; and relaxing at home, where he discusses his art.

Also an interview with Menuhin's parents, who reminisce about his first lessons (he smashed his first toy violin) and gradual development. (60 min.)

There's a lot more riding on the Super Bowl than a football victory by Melvin Durslag

George Herbert Allen, coach of the Los Angeles Rams of the National Football League, gave thoughtful study not long ago to playing teams from the upstart American League. Soon he was ready with his conclusion.

"The trouble with playing the Americans at this stage," said George, "is that the advantage is all theirs. If you beat them decisively, you have nothing to gain. If you beat them by a short margin, they have scored a moral victory. And if you lose, you have to leave town."

Until such time as the American League reaches parity, Allen says he would just as soon stay away from it, a feeling that might be shared by his NFL colleagues were it not that a confrontation with the Americans at this time of year is worth the kind of sugar for which principle is sacrificed.

Specifically, each winning player in the World Championship game (nee Super Bowl) Jan. 14 in Miami will receive $15,000. Nor is one who loses in the football World Championship reduced to bread and water. He gets $7500.

If, while watching the match over CBS, you should find the performance below expectations, you can be impressed by the fact that never before will so much have been paid for so little. The network is coming up with $2,500,000 for this game, meaning that with live receipts the gross could run upward of $3,200,000.

In the eight years of its existence, the American League has improved noticeably on the field. And progress, you must presume, will continue to be shown over the next several years. But how the two leagues now stand, artistically, is conjectural. That is, we know for a certainty the National League is stronger, but we aren't sure by how much.

It is the consensus among coaches in the NFL that the new league is still deficient in two areas: (a) quarterbacking and (b) defense, particularly in the secondary. One National League coach explains:

"It appears as if the American League is using its best personnel on offense. The result is that the attacks in many cases are good, but the defenses are suffering."

When the two leagues got together for the Super Bowl game last year, Kansas City held Green Bay close for the first half, which ended with the Packers in front by 14-10. But when Green Bay gathered itself in the second half, it became clear that the best the American League could offer was not ready for the upper echelon of the NFL. The final score was 35-10.

Then, before the start of the 1967 season, 16 exhibition games were booked between the leagues. The Americans won only three but succeeded in losing another seven by respectable scores.

So now the boys come down to the big-money game again; not surprisingly, the standard-bearer for the Nationals is favored, and it would hit with suffocating shock if the form did not prevail,

If, playing for such stakes, the athletes will be seized by understandable pressure, the tension at least will have eased slightly for CBS, no longer required to upstage NBC in the telecasting of the game. Last January, the first interleague championship game was tossed to both networks, with the understanding they would alternate each year thereafter.

"Never in our history," a CBS official confesses, "have we spent as much to promote a show as we did the Super Bowl game last year. We were determined to beat NBC. Our cash outlay alone ran more than $100,000—and very possibly we gave away a million dollars' worth of time."

The television people ran such temperatures over the respective ratings on the game that when unofficial word reached Radio City that NBC had carried New York, great hosannas were heard. Happily, CBS didn't concede, because it turned out the report was either false or premature. CBS outrated NBC not only in New York but in most other places sampled by Mr. Nielsen.

For CBS, rival NBC is no problem this year, but the championship game means a lot to the former, considering its position in the professional-football picture. Its annual investment in the NFL runs upward of $22,000,000, exclusive of the interleague title game. Should the American League win, would CBS sponsorswho pay up to $70,000 a minute for commercial time during the seasondevelop the feeling that NBC is showing better football for less? Like the league it backs, NBC has the sweet irresponsibility of everything to gain with scarcely a thing to lose.

The shifting of the title game from Los Angeles, where it was staged last year, to Miami is considered a distinct break for CBS. Because of the pro football rule calling for local television blackouts, the networks lost the Nation's No. 2 market last season. The Los Angeles area embraces some 7,500,000, compared to roughly 1,000,000 in metropolitan Miami.

It hasn't yet been decided how long the game will remain in Florida, since there is sentiment among many of the owners to play it each year in the park of one of the principals. It is their feeling that league-and world-championship matches belong to local fans, regardless of substandard field conditions that might prevail in winter in most cities of the two leagues. On the same day the Packers and Chiefs played in sunshine in Los Angeles last year, the temperature and 6 degrees in Green Bay.

Owners watch most of their games from the warmth and comfort of the press box. For them, it is always Florida and California. Only the players know they are in Green Bay

In the general category of adventure shows, there are only three in the A class—I Spy, Mission: Impossible and Ironside. There are, however, several in the B category. And this year a new B has been added—this show. Developed by the creator of Mission: Impossible, Bruce Geller, it stars Mike Connors as a private eye named Mannix. You may remember him from a series called Tightrope; in any case, he is still taut and tingling. It also stars, as Mannix's boss, Joseph Campanella, who, as bosses go these days, is excellent.

There is too much violence—that's par for the course in the B category -but somehow a large part of it seems more excusable than in most shows. By the same token, Mannix has too many melodramatic chases, but these too are by no means so melodramatic that you don't care. You do care-even when, as in one recent episode, you felt that even Mannix himself didn't think he had a chance. This occurred in "Huntdown," when Mannix, who had one foot in a plaster cast, ran on the other foot some 46 miles across a prairie-all the while being chased by two men in two different bulldozers who were not only steadily gaining on him but also steadily shooting at him. Even if Mannix didn't think he had a chance, however, he was still trying. Every now and then he dropped down on one knee and shot back. Finally made it too-to the house of a girl who had already double-crossed him twice. But after he knocked on her door he fell down unconscious. Well, nothing comes easy in this show.

Another recent episode, called "Run. Sheep, Run," started with a drunken girl and her boy friend coming out of a bar and careening across the street to go up a short flight of steps to her room. After a kiss she fumbles for the keys, then drops them, "I'll get them," says the boy friend. "No." she says, and stumbles down the stairs. Then a car comes up and a man leans out and pumps three bullets into the boy friend-whereupon the girl screams and runs into an alley and the man drives right into the alley after her, then jumps back in his car and drives away, but not before we had seen, under his jacket, a police badge. And all of this, mind you, wasn't even the show itself, it was just the teaser. But, make no mistake about it, it teased an extremely engrossing, original and well-written story about police corruption. "Since when," one policeman asks Mannix. "did some of the guys in your line of work start worrying about being legal?" Replies Mannix grimly, "Since some of the guys in your line of work stopped worrying about it."

Through it all, Mannix has many romantic adventures—but he refuses to go steady. One girl first kissed him to make him do what she wanted him to; then, when that didn't work, took a pistol from under her pillow and tried to shoot him. Mannix didn't even act surprised. In a show like this, he figures, it takes all kinds.

HOPE'S GREATEST 'ROAD' SHOW

By Leslie Raddatz

Bob Hope and troupe onstage in Vietnam entertaining troops during Christmas, 1966.

It was 7:30 in the morning of an unusually chilly December day in Los Angeles. A large crowd, including a U.S. Navy band, a Salvation Army contingent and Mayor Sam Yorty (dressed as Santa Claus), was at the airport to see Bob Hope off for his Christmas 1967 trip to Vietnam.

The band blared "Thanks for the Memory." A group of costumed kids sang "Jingle Bells." A rock group twanged. A Salvation Army chaplain led a prayer. Raquel Welch, in a brown minisuit, sat in her car for 45 minutes, isolated from the other members of the Vietnam-bound troupe. Then, when Hope arrived, she sprinted out to pose next to him for the photographers.

They all boarded a huge, window-less military plane—loaded with band equipment, costumes, personal belongings and beer (cases of it, stacked behind the pilot's compartment)—and then they were off on the road to Vietnam. (The tour will be recounted on Hope's NBC special this Thursday—Jan. 18.)

It was the beginning of the latest in a long skein of visits to servicemen that have found Hope in many more parts of the world than he and Bing Crosby saw in the seven "Road" movies, which took them from Singapore to Rio. There have been a lot of memories crowded into a quarter-century which began at March Field, Cal., in May of 1941. "That was months before we got into the war," says Hope. "We must have had a premonition."

During World War II, the comedian did his radio show from a different military installation every week. "I loved it," he says, "and I still do. I've always been more or less of a gypsy. In vaudeville, I not only traveled all the time but did benefits every chance I got. As far as I'm concerned, the first day you're not doing something is a disaster day."

He has entertained an audience of 30,000 in Marseilles during World War II and an audience of eight at Northway, a refueling stop between Anchorage and Fairbanks, Alaska. "At first there were just these three or four guys-the night shift was on duty when we landed," Hope recalls. "One of them said, 'Hey, we're in the service, too. How about doing a show for us?' So I got up on a stump and started telling some jokes. While I was talking, the day shift guys woke and stuck their heads out of the tent flaps. At first they couldn't believe it. Then they started coming out, one at a time. Finally there were eight of them."

After all these years, Lucky Strike is getting soft.

Hope, Jerry Colonna and Anita Bryant aboard the Ticonderoga, 1965.

Hope has done shows while he had a temperature of 102 and after receiving the last rites from a priest. As he puts it, "When the band starts. you gotta go." On his first trip to Vietnam, there was a bullet hole in the plane, and he has put on shows within two miles of mortar fire. Some years before, as he left the stage at Pyongyang, Korea, he passed a dead child in the road ("He had just been shot"), and two weeks later saw pictures of the stage where he had performed burning after an air raid. Last year, captured Vietcong documents revealed that he and his troupe missed a planned bombing of the Brinks Hotel in Saigon by 10 minutes.

Sometimes it is difficult to go on and be funny, not because of any imminent danger to the entertainers but because of what they know about the men they are to entertain. Hope recalls, "In '44, we played before 15,000 Marines on an island in the South Pacific. We knew that they were invasion troops and that half of them would never come back. Later we found out that 60 percent of them were knocked off."

It is things like this which make him resent critics who say that he entertains GIs because they are such a responsive audience. "Just as if I'd go out there because it makes a good show!" he snorts.

On a trip to Tunis in 1943, Hope spotted a familiar face in the audience. He says, "Before the war, there was this guy that used to stand by the gate at NBC every week and ask if I had an extra ticket to the show. I'd always give him one, and he was always there. When I walked onstage in Tunis, there he was in the audience, in uniform. He just sort of waved at me casually—you'd have thought we were back in Hollywood."

Name a military installation, and Bob Hope has probably been there. It is estimated that he has traveled 6,000,000 miles—innumerable trips during World War II and the Korean conflict; Berlin during the air lift of 1948; Alaska in 1949; the Pacific in 1950; Greenland, 1954; England and Iceland, 1955; Alaska again in 1956; the Orient, 1957; the Azores, North Africa, Iceland and Europe, 1959; the Caribbean, 1960; Newfoundland and Greenland, 1961; the Orient again in 1962; the Mediterranean, 1963; and South Vietnam and other Far Eastern bases in the years since.

He has received more than 700 awards and citations, including the Medal of Merit, presented by General Eisenhower; a tribute signed by 1,000,000 GIs, presented by President Truman; a gold medal authorized by Congress and presented by President Kennedy; and a USO plaque presented by President Johnson.

But a few blocks from Hope's Palm Springs home is a man who knows a side of the comedian which is not mentioned in the citations nor apparent in the flip Hope jokes. His name is Don Kimsey. During the Korean War, a badly wounded Marine. he was pushed forward in a wheel chair to sing for Hope. After his performance Hope told him to get in touch with him when he got back to the States-that he might be able to help him. Kimsey did exactly that. and Hope got him on television. Eventually Kimsey became a vocalist with Tommy Dorsey's orchestra. Now. as a soloist, he stars at one of the swank Palm Springs hotels.

Although Hope is proud of the roomful of awards and citations he has received, he undoubtedly gets more satisfaction from what he has done for ordinary GIs like Don Kimsey—whose story, by the way, he did not tell himself. Now, after more than a quarter of a century on the road, he says, "It's a lot of work—from the time you wake up in the morning until you go to bed at night, you never have a minute. But it's a very exciting, gratifying thing, and I wouldn't have it any other way."
